

Defense of Marriage?

The pagan ethic of indifference to Gods law is well enshrined in America. The founding fathers never intended this and did not have the foresight to envision that evil could act from their manifest good intentions. The dismissal of Gods law is masked in the charade of separation of church and state. Politicians blithely remonstrate that their personal religious beliefs can be left at the door of any legislative chamber. Claiming personal and devout morality at church, publicly they act freely as pagans.

A major political party has embraced an anti-life and immoral platform. They cherish the phrase “You can’t legislate morality”. They would have instructed Moses to take His tablets back up the mountain and stay there. Their legislative actions, and/or failure to act, re-enforce this attitude in spades. Devout pagans find great solace in this political party. Violence real and subtle, to life and spirit, emanate from this party.

Particularly heinous are alleged Catholic politicians who mock their church teachings while supporting anti-life and immoral activity and legislation. The Faithful of Massachusetts have been saddled with the burden of two U.S. Senators who privately claim solidarity in religious matters. Yet their allegiance in office is in strict conformance with that major political party platform. Privately religious, publicly pagans; how is this reconciled for the truly Faithful by their Church? Has cowardice and inertia by the Church supported this public scandal, allowing it to flourish?

One must wonder if it is too little too late. The Roman Catholic Church attempted to influence legislative action in the state of Massachusetts regarding marriage. Marriage is a sacred union of a man and a women and the Church has a right to hold to this belief and enforce it for the Faithful. Did the Massachusetts legislature really care about the truly Faithful of the Roman Catholic Church? It regularly embraces that major political party platform. It can also claim that many of the so-called Faithful belong to that major political party.

Defense of life has been lost! Reality is tough to see sometimes but the death knell for humanity sounded in January 1973. When this country allowed the destruction of Unborn Americans to become the law of the land, it embraced a maximum pagan objective. It was no longer a nation “Under God”. The rapid ascent of every pagan anti-life and immoral desire was soon to follow. This country refused a defense of its progeny, Unborn America, and their cry for justice will not go unanswered. That is the reason we will soon have to answer before God. It is just too simple to be seen, by those who have closed their eyes!

Defense of Marriage? Simply too little too late!
Frank Porter 2 Feb 2004

The president’s call for a constitutional marriage amendment may or may not come to fruition for America. It is obvious that “civil unions” for same sex couples has become a certainty in America. Does anyone really believe that God views America as a moral country simply because we may enact a constitutional amendment forbidding civil unions to be called a “marriage”? What nonsense!

Frank Porter 26 Feb 2004