

The Sky is Falling.

Clairvoyance may not be one of your particular talents. However, an observant person might come to the conclusion that forces at work in the world today are accelerating all of us toward a final and very certain physical and spiritual conclusion. No human being can set a date certain for that ending but it could be closer than any human being would wish to acknowledge.

Calamitous! Could you call this the current state of affairs in the world? Truth is routinely distorted, morality is not simply challenged it is attacked with a vengeance and deadly violence against the innocent both born and unborn is rampant. In a world of great plenty, famines are allowed. In a world of great power, ethnic cleansing is allowed. In a world of great technology, many are simply left behind. In a world of alleged tolerance, religious persecution is allowed. In a world of attempted international unity, false camaraderie, intrigue and corruption govern its apparent ineffective efforts at building a world where all are truly free and at peace. Worldwide peace, which many would have us believe is attainable, is much too remote a reality. The situation in the Middle East is intractable and headed for a cataclysmic end. Humanity has evolved the means for its own destruction and retains a propensity for violence, which must absolutely lead to fulfillment. It is believed the Israelis have the nuclear means to defend themselves and have restrained from any first strike. Their neighbors have vowed to destroy them and seek the nuclear means to do so. This recipe for nuclear disaster must lead to its logical critical mass. International proponents exist on both sides of this intractable line. To believe that such a local nuclear event will not happen and propagate to the four corners of the world escapes reason.

Here in America we are a nation divided into two major political parties. We could solve all our nations problems except we're no different than that international attempt at peaceful organization. Politicians are less concerned for the people's welfare and more concerned about gaining power. Elections are most important, not moral responsibility and crisis government manifests this. Nothing gets done until a crisis forces some action. Unfortunately such an irresponsible pattern must lead to a crisis that has festered beyond repair, the crisis that cannot be fixed.

We are in the season of Advent. Be ready, stay alert, we know not the hour when our Lord will return. The time of waiting for His word to spread to the four corners of the world has ended. Pray for perseverance, spiritual strength. Defy the call to legalized immorality shouted out today. Time is running out for them and for us. Be ready stay alert! Jesus please return in glory today and bring your justice to this world, have mercy on us sinners.
