

FINAL DAYS?

Why might the final days be upon us? It seems rather simple. Three out of the four players believe the loss of human life is of no consequence in the pursuit of their goals. With this mindset as their driving force, it is easy to see the conclusion that must follow. Human life will be totally destroyed. God works in mysterious ways at times and as plain as day at other times. Good and evil is always possible and God views with great interest the course individuals and nations chart for themselves. Humanity had mostly strived to improve when it retained a modicum of humility and some semblance of God as its creator. Pride has replaced any humility. The commandments have been replaced by the “state”, the “religious” are silent partners and the laboratories have become the new “creators”. The sorry conclusion to all of this will be exactly what we all deserve. The final three must come to blows. They cannot continue to co-exist and loss of life means nothing to them. Prior restraint by major nuclear powers maintained a delicate but peaceful balance. This will shortly fade into a nuclear disaster because mankind has refused to love life first, which would bring peace to all. America is not without blame. It has not put life first but instead has become a pagan nation. So God will allow us to bring about our own end while He looks to see if there are any faithful left. All who refused to support human life will have exactly what they asked for, a lifeless planet.
